

Biography

Hiromitsu Haba received his Ph.D. from Kanazawa University, Japan, in 1999. In the following years, he worked at Japan Atomic Energy Institute as Postdoctoral Researcher (1999-2001), and at RIKEN as Special Postdoctoral Researcher (2002-2004), Research Scientist (2004-2006), Senior Research Scientist (2007-2010), and Team Leader (2011-2017). Since 2018, he has been Director of RI Application Research Group (2018-2022), super heavy Element Research Group (2022-Present), Nuclear Chemistry Group (2023-Present), Nishina Centre for Accelerator-Based Science, RIKEN. His scientific interests are nuclear and radiochemistry in general, with focuses on synthesis and chemistry of super heavy elements and production and applications of radioisotopes with accelerators.